Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Currently, in laws affecting the state civil service, a person with a disability is referred to as having a “handicap” or as being “handicapped”. This bill substitutes the word “disability” or the word “disabled” for the word “handicap” or the word “handicapped”.

For further information, see the NOTES provided by the law revision committee of the joint legislative council.

NOTE: Currently, in ch. 230, stats., relating to employment relations, the term disabilities. However, in 1997 Wisconsin Act 112, remedial legislation requested by the department of workforce development, several references in ch. 230 were changed from “handicap” to “disability”, where there was a cross-reference to definitions used in ch. 230 by the department of workforce development under the Fair Employment Law in ch. 111, stats. This draft changes the remaining uses of the term “handicap” and variants of that term in ch. 230 to the term “disability” and variants of that term, for the purposes of consistency within ch. 230, stats.
